TITLES.

The centurion, as the name implies, was the commander of 100 men in the Roman army.

The title balliff was formerly very honorable, and the official was vested with many important powers.

The title colonel comes from the word almost the same in several languages, signifying a column. The colonel was so called because he led or commanded the column.

The title mayor comes from the French and originally signified "one who keeps guard." He was the head steward of a city, administering its affairs in the name of the king.

Imperator was originally a title of honor bestowed on a victorious general. After the downfall of the Roman republic it became the title of the supreme ruler and had the sense of our word emperor.

The royal title beg has now almost disappeared and when used in the altered form of bey is applied to a military rank in the Turkish army. Originally it was deemed more honorable than that of sultan.

Cures Winter Coughs.

J. E. Grover, 101 North Main St., Ottawa, Kan., writes: "Every fall it has been my wife's trouble to catch a severe cold, and therefore to cough all winter long. Last fall I got her a bottle of Horehound Syrup. She used it and has been able to sleep soundly all night long. Whenever the cough troubles her two or three doses stops the cough and she is able to be up and well." 25c, 50c, $1.00. W. B. Frame.

Any man who depends on wages will acquire a lot more money than the man who depends upon wages.
